The Building

- The City Library in Stuttgart as a completely homogeneous, calm building that contains a great many of the secret values of our civilisation
- Intellectual and cultural centre
- Elegant character
- Detached, monolithic building

The Architecture

- Clear-cut structure
- Layers remind of an onion
- Glass brick façade : introverted, deliberate barrier between the world of education and culture and the hectic world outside.
- Space between the façades is used as a balcony
- At night the entire cube is lit with blue lighting

The Heart

- Archaic space (Pantheon)
- Inner contemplation
- Symbolises the roots of knowledge

The Reading Room

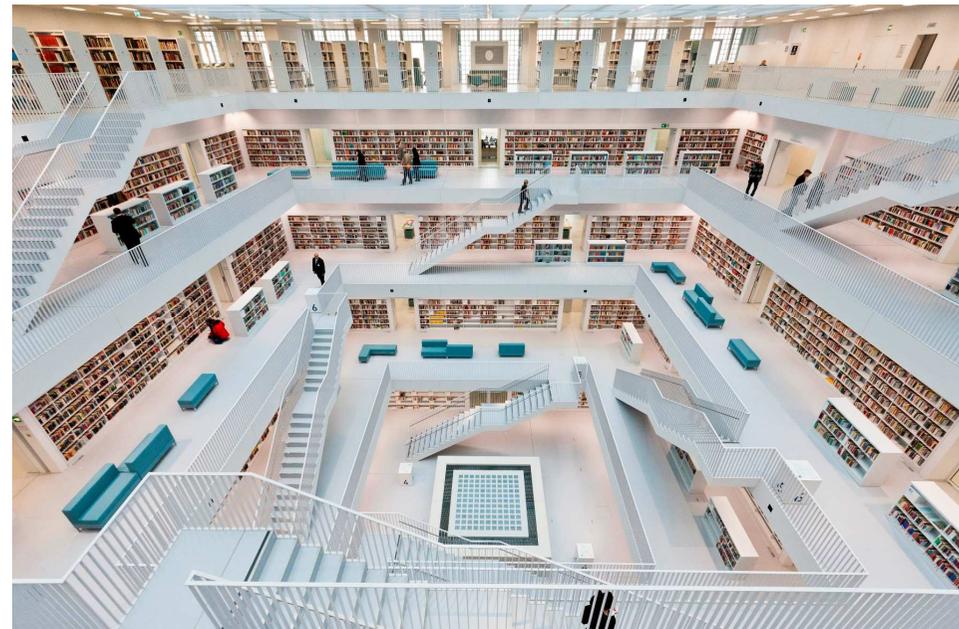

- Extends over four floors and links the various learning studios
- Lit entirely by daylight
- Staircases as flowing promenades
- The funnel-shaped galleries suggest the opening to the infinite world of knowledge
